Aesthetica Creative Writing Award: Shortlist Announced in Celebration of New Writing

Out of thousands of entries, 60 talented writers have been shortlisted for the Aesthetica Creative Writing Award, with a winner in each category of Poetry and Short Fiction. The winning entries by Charles Fishman (Poetry) and Corinne Demas (Short Fiction) have been published along with the 58 finalists' works in the Aesthetica Creative Writing Annual 2015.

The Aesthetica Creative Writing Award is an internationally renowned poetry and short fiction competition open to emerging and established writers from around the world. Now in its eighth year, the award is hosted by Aesthetica Magazine, a leading contemporary art and culture publication with a readership of 180,000 worldwide.

The Award recognises excellence in new writing and provides a platform for literary professionals to showcase their work and reach a wider audience. Each year the finalists and winners are published in the Aesthetica Creative Writing Annual, an absorbing compendium that fuses new and critically-acclaimed international writers. Considering a vast range of themes and subject matter, the book reveals many different aspects of life in today's society alongside introductions by Arifa Akbar, literary editor of The Independent and inewspapers, and poet and Professor Dr Oz Hardwick.

The 2014 competition was fierce, with over 2,500 entries from 48 countries worldwide, including Australia, Canada, the USA, France, Germany, The Netherlands, Japan, China and the UK. 60 finalists from the poetry and short fiction categories, including a winner from each, were selected for publication, featuring recent university graduates alongside established literary professionals in a unique collection of writers at all stages in their career.

Winning entries include Corinne Demas' short story Thanksgiving, which was praised by judge Arifa Akbar as a piece with emotional undercurrents that swirl beneath the surface giving it heft and complexity. Winner of the poetry category, Charles Fishman impressed judges with his beautifully balanced work Snow is the Poem Without Flaws that echoes medieval riddles and enigmatic folk rhymes while confronting themes of contemporary conflict.

This year's winners were also awarded £500 each and, to kick-start a new writing project, were connected with leading organisations in the industry, including Christine Green Author's Agent and Apples and Snakes, to create a supportive network through mentoring sessions pushing their literary talent further. A selection of books from Bloodaxe Books and Vintage were also awarded to each winner along with a subscription to Granta for all-year-round inspiration.

Cherie Federico, Editor of Aesthetica Magazine and Judge of the Creative Writing Award, comments: "In publishing the Annual, we are presented with a fantastic and unique opportunity to showcase the best emerging and established literary talent from across the world, and champion the winners and finalists from the Award. The result is a collection of outstanding quality, which you can return to time and time again; it will continue to spark your passion for new writing."
